KCA Announces Top Young Leader Award Finalists

Harrisburg, PA – The Keystone Contractors Association (KCA) announced the finalists in its 2019 Top Young Leader Award. This honor is bestowed upon emerging leaders within the KCA contractor members who display leadership qualities in the construction industry and in the community.

The following professionals are in the running for this award:

Charles Thiemann

Sr Project Manager
Alexander Building Construction Co.

Jerome Urban

President & CEO
Performance Construction Services

Both Mr. Thiemann and Mr. Urban share similar paths to gaining respect in the industry, in that both began careers at their employer around 13 years ago. While both were rising through the ranks at their respective companies, and overseeing more challenging construction projects, both continued to give back to their communities. Along with numerous organizations that they both help, both gentlemen serve on the School Board for their local school district.

The recipient of the 2019 KCA Top Young Leader Award will be announced on the evening of Thursday, February 20 at the Crowne Plaza in Harrisburg at the inaugural P.A.K. Awards Ceremony.

“Both Charles and Jerome are highly respected within the construction industry and in their respective communities,” said Jon O’Brien, executive director for the KCA. “The central Pennsylvania construction industry has a great future with leaders like these two. KCA is fortunate to be associated with them.”
