KCA Awards Winners in Its First Scholarship Offering

Harrisburg, PA – The Keystone Contractors Association (KCA) announced the winners of its inaugural scholarship are Siana Marcus (middle), a Penn State University Architectural Engineering major, and Hayden Woland (far right), a Penn College of Technology Construction Management major. Both recipients will receive $5,000 towards their education, as well as be eligible for future educational payments.

Because of the KCA's strong commitment to quality construction educational programs, the KCA Board of Directors felt it was important to allocate $10,000 annually to the bright, future leaders of the industry that are in these programs.
